

- Getting Started>
- This is ZeroTier>
- Guides>
- OS / Platform Notes>
- FAQ & Troubleshooting
- Glossary

Windows Virtual Interface Speed Limitation

Why is the ZeroTier Virtual Network Port Running at 100Mbps?

Windows may show the ZeroTier virtual network port as a 100Mbps or 10Mbps port. This is incorrect. It's a software defined port with no intrinsic speed limit. Windows doesn't show accurate numbers for non-physical ports that have no actual interface device.

Tags: faqwindowsexplanation

Why is the ZeroTier Virtual Network Port Running at 100Mbps?

Product

- Download
- ZeroTier Central
- Pricing
- Security

Documentation

- Getting Started
- This is ZeroTier
- Guides
- FAQ

Community & Support

- Discussion Forum
- GitHub
- Contact Support

Company

- About
- Blog
- Careers
- Privacy Policy 